Motorized Unit Comprises Machine Guns, Searchlights and Other Pieces.

DERBY PROGRAM

Three officers, 35 enlisted men, two anti-aircraft guns, two searchlights, four machine guns, one sound-locating piece and seven or eight motor vehicles will make up the motorized anti-aircraft unit coming here Friday afternoon from Aberdeen, Maryland, for the two-day aerial demonstration at the Gettysburg airport. The demonstration is sponsored by the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce.

Captain W. F. Marquat will be in command of the anti-aircraft unit during its stay in Gettysburg.

Sergeant T. N. Boate and Corporal C. W. Achenbach, in charge of the local sub-station of highway patrolmen, will head the escort of motorcycle patrolmen which will meet the motorized unit at the Pennsylvania-Maryland line and escort it to the local airport.

Camp At Airport

The 25 men will be billeted in the airport hangar. Complete camping equipment, including its own kitchen, is being carried by the unit on its visit to Gettysburg.

Government engineers will test the bridge spanning the railroad cut at the airport from the Lincoln Highway. If the bridge is found safe to carry a ten-ton load the unit will traverse the Lincoln Highway from town to the airport. If the bridge is not strong enough the motorized unit will go to the port by way of the Mummassburg road.

Dinners for Pilots

Saturday noon the Hotel Gettysburg will entertain the visiting pilots at a noon-day luncheon. Saturday evening the pilots will be guests of the Blue Parrot Tea Room.

The hotel and Blue Parrot Tea room are tendering the dinners to the visiting pilots as a mark of their appreciation of the interest shown in the development of aviation and of the local airport.

Burgess Heiges has issued an appeal to the merchants and townspeople to fly the American flag during the two days as a public manifestation of the gratitude or local residents to the visiting guests.

Letters continue to pour into the Chamber of Commerce offices here from all parts of the country indicating considerable interest shown and widespread publicity and advertising given the two-day aerial demonstration.

APPOINTMENT NOT DICTATED, ASSERTS REED

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP).—Denial of charges that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, "dictated" the appointment of Albert L. Watson to be a judge of the middle district of Pennsylvania, was made before a senate judiciary sub-committee today by Senator Reed.

Reed without explaining who had made the charges, said he felt that "utmost care should be exercised" in selecting the appointee for the additional judgeship in the middle district.

"I gave the appointment more care than any other I ever recommended," Senator Reed said.

Before Reed took the stand Watson detailed before the committee how he had participated with Judge George W. Maxey in the now famous "two-judge order" under which election officials are appointed in Lackawanna county.

LINCOLN DETOUR IS LIFTED TODAY

The detour on the Lincoln Highway between Gettysburg and New Oxford was officially lifted this afternoon by the state highway department. The detour was established late in May to permit the rebuilding of the Lincoln Highway between Guldens station and New Oxford. While the detour was in effect, traffic was routed by way of Hanover.

Approximately five miles of macadam highway were re-built with concrete during the summer. Work on the terms is still proceeding and approaches to the Swift Run and Conewago bridges remain to be constructed. This work will be let under a separate contract to be awarded by the highway department October 25.

COUNTY PAPER NOT INCLUDED IN BANKRUPTCY

Adams County Independent, Littlestown, Is Part Of Alleman Estate.

PAPER ON PRESS

Although the Delta Publishing and Printing company, of Delta, York county, publisher of the Adams County Independent, Littlestown, has been adjudged bankrupt by Judge Albert W. Johnson, of the United States federal court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, it was learned authoritatively today by The Gettysburg Times that the Littlestown weekly newspaper will not be included in the bankruptcy proceedings.

When the Independent was sold by the late B. M. Alleman to J. G. Cassner, in 1923, a conditional sales contract agreement was entered into between the seller and purchaser which is on record at the court house here. This contract was continued when the Delta Publishing company bought the business on April 1, 1928, and is still in force. Will Separate Papers

Mr. Alleman died in Florida this summer, and the sales contract became part of his estate which has not yet been settled. By reason of this conditional sales contract, the Littlestown printing business is still owned by the Alleman estate, it is stated, and cannot be thrown into bankruptcy along with the Delta Publishing company.

Although it is understood the assets and liabilities of the Independent company have been made part of the schedules filed by the Delta Publishing and Printing company in its voluntary bankruptcy action, it was stated that the business of the Littlestown company will be separated from that of the Delta corporation.

Goes To Press Today

The Adams County Independent was scheduled to go to press today as usual, and employees at the place said they knew of no order to cease publication after today's issue.

A. W. Clapp, secretary and treasurer of the Delta Publishing and Printing company, who has been acting as publisher of both the Delta and Littlestown weeklies since S. D. Covey quit as manager of the Independent some time ago, could not be reached by telephone today.

Creditors Meet Oct. 25

A. R. Michener, of the Harrisburg Telegraph, has been named temporary receiver for the bankrupt publishing company and will continue to operate the Delta paper until the creditors meet at the office of William York county, at 10 o'clock, October 25.

Both newspapers are publications of long standing and both have behind them long lists of accomplishments in their respective communities. The Independent at one time was a power in Adams county politics and for many years was the leading weekly newspaper in the local field. Both papers have fought up-hill battles in recent years with dailies. At the Independent office it was stated that paper still has a subscription list of approximately 1000.

Had Large Following

The late B. M. Alleman, who took over the management of the Independent in 1916, was a prolific writer, and his editorials were read and discussed by thousands of persons in Adams county. He succeeded his father at the helm of the newspaper, and sold out to J. G. Cassner in February, 1923.

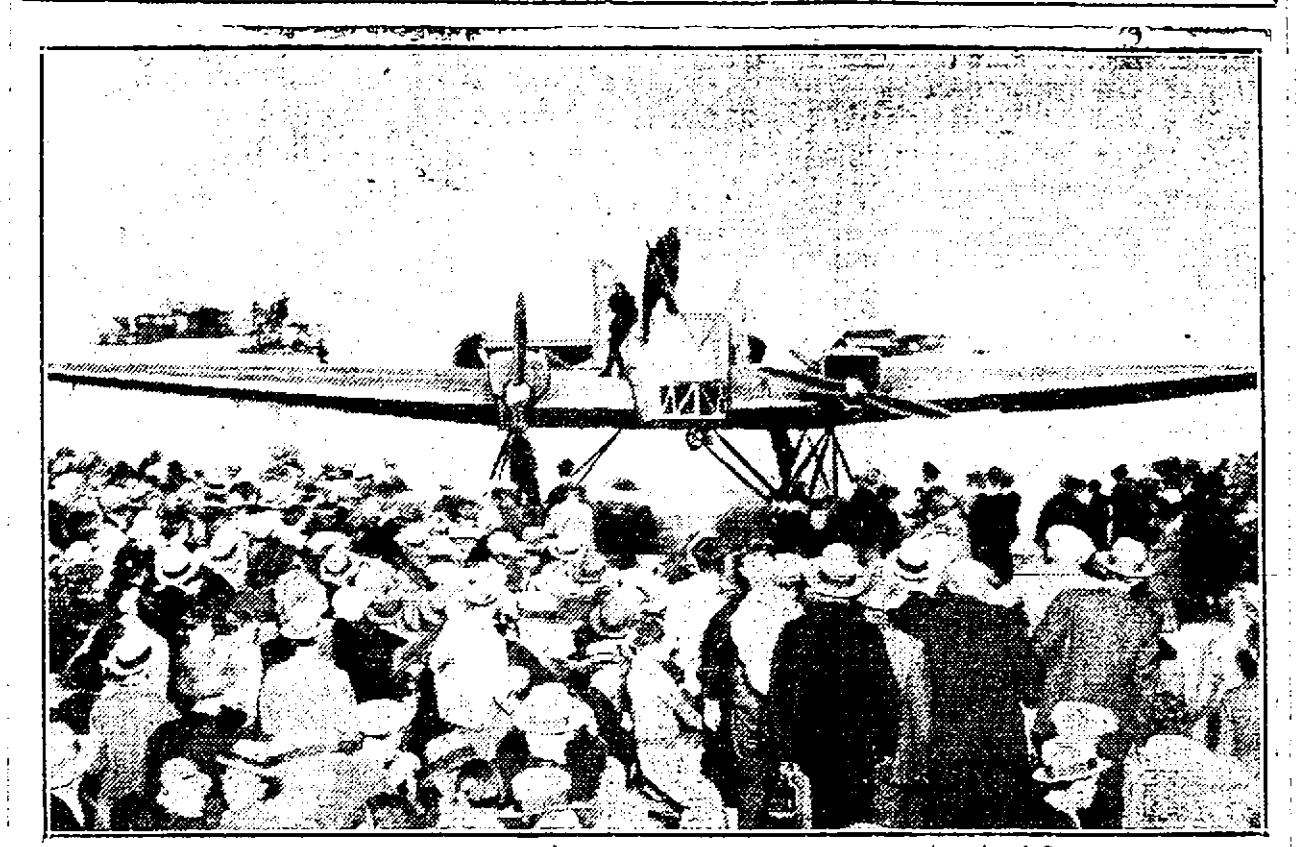

Mr. Cassner sold the paper to the Delta Publishing and Printing company on April 1, 1928, and has since left Littlestown. His present whereabouts are unknown. S. D. Covey, of the Delta concern, managed the Independent until last June when he resigned. He is said to be located in Ohio at present.

BUYING LIQUOR ISSUE MUST GO THROUGH COURTS

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP).—Attorney General Mitchell today said a determination of the liability to arrest the purchaser of bootleg liquor could be obtained only through the arrest and conviction for actual purchase and then carrying the case to the Supreme Court.

He expressed belief that no pending case would provide a proper test and that since the recently discussed Philadelphia case, in which the court of appeals held the buyer not liable, was based upon conspiracy to violate the law through buying, it did not constitute a thorough test.

Carrying the case through the various courts to the highest tribunal, he pointed out, would take many months.

The Bullets are in the worst condition a Gettysburg team has been in for many years. Old Man Jinx, the hospital attack fate and everything else imaginable have struck at the Bullets, eleven with the result that Coach Bream will be forced to send a battered, bandaged band of Bullets against P. M. C.

Despite the badly crippled condition of the squad, an optimistic spirit prevails among those selected to defend the Orange and Blue Saturday.

The cause of the blaze was undetermined. Firemen said those who perished probably had suffocated in their sleep. None could be identified at once. The building was an old brick structure and was patronized chiefly by working men.

John Fitzhenry who turned in the alarm said the flames apparently had swept upward through the stair way.

RIGHT HAND IS CUT OFF BY HAY BALER

J. Burton Witherow, 28, Has Balance Of Hand Amputated At Wrist.

The accident happened as Mr. Witherow started work for the day. He was cleaning an accumulation of hay from the machine while it was in operation when the plunger, which compresses the hay, caught his right hand, cutting it off near the wrist.

Amputate Hand

To Albert Koontz, who was standing near Mr. Witherow when the accident occurred, the injured man said, "I knew better than that."

Keneth McClellan, near Greenmount, who works for Mr. Witherow, but who was in the barn when the accident happened, brought his injured employer to the office of Dr. C. G. Crist, who immediately directed them to the Warner hospital.

At the hospital, the hand was amputated at the wrist. The injured man this afternoon was reported to be resting as comfortably as could be expected.

APPOINTMENT NOT DICTATED. ASSERTS REED

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP).—Denial of charges that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, "dictated" the appointment of Albert L. Watson to be a judge of the middle district of Pennsylvania, was made before a senate judiciary sub-committee today by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania.

Reed without explaining who had made the charges, said he felt that "utmost care should be exercised" in selecting the appointee for the additional judgeship in the middle district.

"I gave the appointment more care than any other I ever recommended," Senator Reed said.

Before Reed took the stand Watson detailed before the committee how he had participated with Judge George W. Maxey in the now famous "two-judge" order, under which election officials are appointed in Lackawanna county.

LINCOLN DETOUR IS LIFTED TODAY

The detour on the Lincoln Highway between Gettysburg and New Oxford was officially lifted this afternoon by the state highway department. The detour was established late in May to permit the rebuilding of the Lincoln Highway between Guilford's station and New Oxford. While the detour was in effect, traffic was routed by way of Hanover.

Approximately five miles of macadam highway were re-built with concrete during the summer. Work on the berms is still proceeding and approaches to the Swift Run and Conewago bridges remain to be constructed. This work will be let under a separate contract to be awarded by the highway department October 25.

COUNTY PAPER NOT INCLUDED IN BANKRUPTCY

Adams County Independent, Littlestown, Is Part Of Alleman Estate.

PAPER ON PRESS

Although the Delta Publishing and Printing company, of Delta, York county, publisher of the Adams County Independent, Littlestown, has been adjudged bankrupt by Judge Albert W. Johnson, of the United States federal court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, it was learned authoritatively today by The Gettysburg Times that the Littlestown weekly newspaper will not be included in the bankruptcy proceedings.

When the Independent was sold by the late B. M. Alleman to J. G. Cassner, in 1923, a conditional sales contract agreement was entered into between the seller and purchaser which is on record at the court house here. This contract was continued when the Delta Publishing company bought the business on April 1, 1928, and is still in force.

Mr. Alleman died in Florida this summer, and the sales contract became part of his estate which has not yet been settled. By reason of this conditional sales contract, the Littlestown printing business is still owned by the Alleman estate, it is stated, and cannot be thrown into bankruptcy along with the Delta Publishing company.

Although it is understood the assets and liabilities of the Independent company have been made part of the schedules filed by the Delta Publishing and Printing company in its voluntary bankruptcy action, it was stated that the business of the Littlestown company will be separated from that of the Delta corporation.

Goes To Press Today
The Adams County Independent was scheduled to go to press today as usual, and employees at the place said they knew of no order to cease publication after today's issue.

A. W. Clapp, secretary and treasurer of the Delta Publishing and Printing company, who has been acting as publisher of both the Delta and Littlestown weeklies since S. D. Covey quit as manager of the Independent some time ago, could not be reached by telephone today.

Creditors Meet Oct. 25
A. R. Michener, of the Harrisburg Telegraph, has been named temporary receiver for the bankrupt publishing company and will continue to operate the Delta paper until the creditors meet at the office of William H. Kurtz, referee in bankruptcy for York county, at 10 o'clock, October 25.

Both newspapers are publications of long standing and both have behind them long lists of accomplishments in their respective communities. The Independent at one time was a power in Adams county politics and for many years was the leading weekly newspaper in the local field. Both papers have fought up-hill battles in recent years with dailies. At the Independent office it was stated that paper still has a subscription list of approximately 1,000.

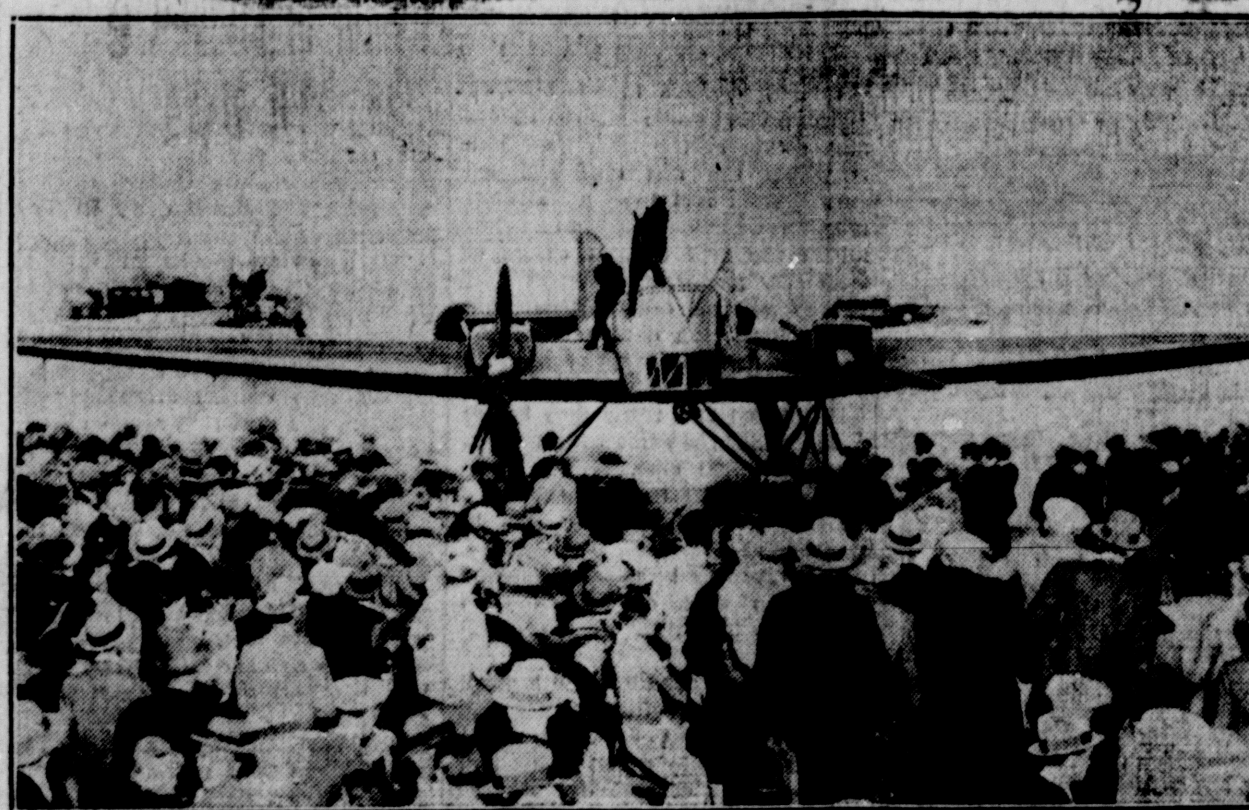

Had Large Following
The late B. M. Alleman, who took over the management of the Independent in 1916, was a prolific writer, and his editorials were read and discussed by thousands of persons in Adams county. He succeeded his father at the helm of the newspaper, and sold out to J. G. Cassner in February, 1923.

Mr. Cassner sold the paper to the Delta Publishing and Printing company on April 1, 1928, and has since left Littlestown. His present whereabouts are unknown. S. D. Covey, of the Delta concern, managed the Independent until last June when he resigned. He is said to be located in Ohio at present.

BUYING LIQUOR ISSUE MUST GO THROUGH COURTS

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP).—Attorney General Mitchell today said a determination of the liability to arrest the purchaser of bootleg liquor could be obtained only through the arrest and conviction for actual purchase and then carrying the case to the Supreme Court.

He expressed belief that no pending case would provide a proper test and that since the recently discussed Philadelphia case, in which the court of appeals held the buyer not liable, was based upon conspiracy to violate the law through buying, it did not constitute a thorough test.

Carrying the case through the various courts to the highest tribunal, he pointed out, would take many months.

Sees Tariff Bill To Hoover's Liking

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP).—Senator Borah, of Idaho, said after a call at the White House today that he believed a tariff bill would be passed by Congress in a shape which would be acceptable to President Hoover.

Bream's Bandaged Bullets Meet P. M. C. On Saturday

TEN MEN ON INJURED LIST AS ORANGE AND BLUE MEN STRIVE TO GET IN GOOD SHAPE FOR THIS WEEK'S TILT. PLAYERS REMAIN OPTIMISTIC DESPITE ATTACK BY OLD MAN JINX.

"Bream's Bandaged Bullets," the "hospital squad" of the Orange and Blue, will leave Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock for Philadelphia, and on Saturday they meet the powerful Pennsylvania Military college eleven at Chester.

The Bullets are in the worst condition a Gettysburg team has been in for many years. Old Man Jinx, the hospital attack, fate and everything else imaginable have struck at the Bullet eleven with the result that Coach Bream will be forced to send a battered, bandaged band of Bullets against P. M. C.

Despite the badly crippled condition of the squad, an optimistic spirit prevails among those selected to defend the Orange and Blue Saturday.

"Connie" Snyder, "Streak" McMillan and Jack Hardy are lost to the backfield. Gulick, Gulian, Seely, Murgard, Santinello, Hower and Cramer are in bad shape. It is likely that Santinello and Hower will be used Saturday if Trainer Capozzi can bring them around with constant treatment. Captain Gulian and Cramer are not in condition to play. However,

RIGHT HAND IS CUT OFF BY HAY BALER

J. Burton Witherow, 28, Has Balance Of Hand Amputated At Wrist.

FATHER OF TWO

J. Burton Witherow, 28, Gettysburg Route 2, on the Ridge road, a thresherman and hay baler, had his right hand cut off at the wrist while operating the baling machine on the farm of J. E. Jacobs, Barlow, at 7:15 o'clock this morning.

The accident happened as Mr. Witherow started work for the day. He was cleaning an accumulation of hay from the machine while it was in operation when the plunger, which compresses the hay, caught his right hand, cutting it off near the wrist.

Amputate Hand
To Albert Koonitz, who was standing near Mr. Witherow when the accident occurred, the injured man said, "I knew better than that."

Kenneth McClellan, near Green-mountain, who works for Mr. Witherow, but who was in the barn when the accident happened, brought his injured employer to the office of Dr. C. E. Crist, who immediately directed them to the Warner hospital.

At the hospital, the hand was amputated at the wrist. The injured man this afternoon was reported to be resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Familiar With Machine
Mr. Witherow has been a thresherman and hay baler for several years, and was thoroughly familiar with the operation of the machine at which he was working. The baler is operated by a tractor, and the plunger works back and forth automatically while the machine is in operation.

The injured man is a son of R. C. Witherow. He is married and is the father of two children.

SEVEN DIE IN HOTEL BLAZE

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 17 (AP).—Trapped by flames, seven persons lost their lives and 12 others were burned or injured in a fire that swept through a hotel here early today.

Firemen believed that all bodies had been recovered from the smoldering ruins. Several of the injured were in a critical condition and some were not expected to live. The cause of the blaze was undetermined. Firemen said those who perished probably had suffocated in their sleep. None could be identified at once. The building was an old brick structure and was patronized chiefly by working men.

John Fitzhenry who turned in the alarm said the flames apparently had swept upward through the stair way.

Father Claims Shooting Of His Child Accidental

Greensburg, Oct. 17 (AP).—Investigation of the shooting of an 18-month-old child at Scottdale was being made today. The child, Lloyd Blackburn, Jr., was shot and killed in the arms of his mother. The coroner said his father admitted he shot the baby accidentally.

Blackburn told the coroner that his wife had carried the child from the house early last night and he had retired. Awakened by a sudden noise, he said, and believing burglars were in the house, he obtained a revolver and fired in the darkened hallway. The bullet struck the child, killing it instantly.

MR. M. H. GARRETT

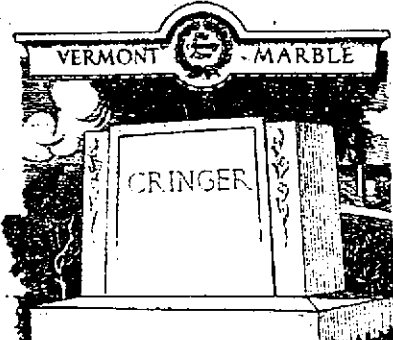

AMAZING BENEFITS REPORTED BY WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN

"Nobody knows how sick I was before starting on Natex," declares Mr. Garrett.

"I've doctor'd for years and I went to bed. I taken every medicine that anyone recommended to me. I must have spent hundreds of dollars but I am glad to say that in spite of the fact that no other medicine ever helped me—Natex went right to the root of my troubles and made me feel like a different man." is the grateful statement of Mr. M. H. Garrett, a well-known Route 2, Hanover citizen who is employed at the Long Furniture Co.

"Nobody knows how I suffered before getting Natex. I had such dizzy spells every day that I was almost frantic. I didn't know what it was to sleep the whole night thru without waking up every hour. My stomach distressed me after every meal in spite of the fact that I scarcely ate enough to keep me strong. Rheumatism got in my joints and muscles and caused me great suffering. Headaches were frequent. I seemed to lose all my strength and in the mornings when I got up I felt just as bad as when I

"The first bottle of Natex didn't seem to do me any good at all but I continued on the treatment and I was soon feeling much better. Now I am like a different man. I haven't suffered with a dizzy spell, head-aches or rheumatism in three weeks and I sleep like a log the whole night thru without waking up once. My appetite has returned and my stomach is in so much better condition that I can even eat ice-cream, something that used to be like poison to me. I thank Natex from the bottom of my heart for what it has done for me and I believe that it will help anyone else who gives it a thorough trial and does not stop as soon as they have taken it for one or two weeks." The Natex Representative is daily explaining the merits of Natex to callers at Murphy's Cut Rate store. See him today. He will allow you to sample the medicine free. Natex is also sold in Read's in Westminster, and by Murphy's in Hanover.

How Much Will It Cost?

The individual contemplating the creation of a Trust or the appointment of a Trust Company under a Will—sooner or later asks: "How much will it cost?"

As no two estates are exactly alike, it is not practical to publish a fixed schedule of charges. But—

For its services as Executor and Trustee, this Company charges no more than is allowed by law or custom to an individual—and often less.

A nation-wide survey seems to prove that on the administration of the average estate, a trust company executorship or trusteeship represents an appreciable saving to the heirs in both time and money.

Sidelights of New York

By Richard Massock
New York—Manhattan's "near east" is being evacuated.

The Armenians, the Syrians and the Greeks, and the Turks as well, are moving out of Washington street. Their emigration is to make way for Battery Town, proposed rich residential district convenient to the financial section.

For decades the smokers of narghile and the makers of Turkish paste, with their prolific families, have lived in a few concentrated blocks around the island's narrow tip from Wall street. Now that they are being dispersed preliminary to the tearing down of their tenements, some are going to more distant parts of the east side.

Others are moving to Greenwich Village, for most of the Syrians are restaurateurs and dealers in native products—linens, pottery and other handicraft. And the Village, of course, is noted for food and gift shops.

Meanwhile the migration is not without incidents demonstrating the swarthy merchants' commercial instincts. A party of Villagers went down to Washington street one evening to have dinner at Hassam's, long their favorite place. They found it vacant. Upon inquiry at a nearby restaurant, they were told the proprietor had gone to Boston.

A few days later they were surprised to find Hassam serving his stuffed grape leaves in a new restaurant around the corner from their apartment.

It developed that several of his old customers had come upon him in the new location and had been just as surprised. Some had been told by his former competitors that he had moved to Passaic. Understanding his countrymen, he merely smiled.

International Romance
Awaiting the recent arrival of the Graf Zeppelin at Lakehurst, N. J., was an automobile on which was hung a placard surrounded with oak leaves and bearing the inscription, "Welcome, Franz, to America."

The greeting was from the American wife of Franz Baarschack, the dirigible pilot, who was waiting for him in the car.

Baarschack and Mitzel Perry, a New York real estate operator, had been schoolmates at Friedrichshafen. Then Miss Perry came to New York. On the airship's first trip here last year they met and renewed their friendship. Last February Miss Perry went to Germany and they were married.

The bridegroom intends to return here to live since the Graf Zeppelin completed its proposed round-the-world flight.

Where Blarney Pays
Speaking of other nationalities, it seems that new arrivals from Ireland no longer look to the police force as their first choice for employment. Instead of donning the blue coat of authority, many are putting on grocers' aprons as managers of neighborhood stores.

One chain in the metropolitan district is said to give preference to Irish immigrants. Another hires them to manage its stores in Anglo-Saxon localities, but its personnel manager explained carefully that it carries out the policy by putting Germans, Jews and Italians in charge of stores where customers are mostly of those races.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

MISUNDERSTANDING
WHAT a happy world this would be if people would only—just understand! War would be at an end. Nations would grow and thrive as they never have. Homes would be happier. Business would run smoothly. Work would take on new glamour.

There would be a finer strain to all friendship, and love would glow like new polished gold.

A 16-year-old boy recently wrote and told me of his unhappy life because his father seemed unable to understand him. I felt for that boy but could offer no solution, not knowing the son or the father. But I felt sure that misunderstanding was back of it all.

All disputes are misunderstanding. Most of the mistakes we make result from misunderstanding.

General Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation of America, in a recent magazine article, says this: "We must not forget that the nation's confusion of tongues has in itself been one of the most fruitful sources of international division and misunderstanding. People mistrust what they do not understand; let them develop a common medium of communication and still another cause of distrust will fall by the wayside of human progress."

When you talk with an unhappy person, almost the first thing you listen to is that he is misunderstood. In most cases it is probably true. On the other hand, we must strive to understand ourselves so far as possible.

COLLEGE GRID FOR HIGH GAME

Contest With Mechanicsburg Saturday Follows Frosh-Academy Game.

Faculty Manager Lefever announced this morning that the Gettysburg high-Mechanicsburg high football game on Saturday, would be staged on Memorial Field at Gettysburg college, instead of on the playground field, as previously announced.

This change of gridrons was made in order to accommodate the large crowd that is expected to witness the game. Mechanicsburg expects over 500 rooters to accompany its team.

Local rooters will also welcome the change as it provides a "bar-gain day" for the fans. At 1:30 Coach "Charlie" Spangler's freshman eleven will play its first game of the season when it meets "Hips" Wolfe's Gettysburg academy aggregation.

Immediately after this struggle the Maroons and Mechanicsburg will put on their battle. An admission of fifty cents will be charged for both games. College students will be admitted to both games on presentation of their pass books.

The high school squad is being put through the stiffest kind of workouts in preparation for the game. The Maroon mentor is expecting his boys to show a reversal of form over last Saturday and is leaving nothing undone to have them primed for the game.

Injured players are fast rounding into shape so that the Bullets will have their full strength for the invaders. Coach Mercer has been pointing his squad for the Gettysburg game for several weeks and undoubtedly some thrills are in store for fans.

YORKER PATENTS SELF LUBRICATING AUTOMOBILE FAN

York—Clarence E. Jeffers, of the Country Club road, Tuesday was awarded a patent for a self-lubricating automobile fan on an application more than two years old. He filed his application with the patent department at Washington, D. C., on April 21, 1927. The patent has been assigned to the Houdaille-Hershey corporation, of Detroit, Mich., one of the largest manufacturers of automobile fans in the country. Fifteen claims for new ideas in the method of lubricating an automobile fan were allowed.

PURCHASE OF VOTES SCORED BY JURIST

Hagerstown—Judge D. H. Rodgers in his charge to the jury at the opening of Berkeley county circuit court at Martinsburg, West Virginia, Tuesday, dwelt comprehensively on the various statutory violations in that county. Especially did he stress violations of the gambling laws, leniency accorded gamblers, prohibition laws and vote buying.

He denounced the vote buyer and declared the vote seller was equally guilty. The man who makes a commodity of his vote is simply selling the liberty for which his forefathers fought and died, the court said.

Referring to the prohibition law, he said that the jurors are required under oath to enforce the law of the state, and to indict all those brought before them, the charges being properly substantiated. The court spoke at length on the laws to prevent gambling and denounced the commercial use of slot machines.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

SYNOPSIS: Barbara, her ankle injured when her horse fell in a water-jump after the fox-hunt, returns to Henderson's home to find that Ray has fled to London, heading a manufactured excuse of urgent business. She finds a short note, explaining only that he will return in a few days. Indignant at Ray's behavior, Barbara determines to take a role of gaily and happiness while she secretly longs for Ray's return. A few nights later, she and Henderson are paired for a midnight treasure hunt.

Chapter 18 AN UNEXPECTED VISITOR

THREE o'clock found Barbara and Henderson sitting in the back parlor of the Blue Boar Inn, to which the last clue had led them. Both had the appearance of being somewhat dejected as they sat in the stiff upright chairs of the stuffy parlor.

"Any of the others been here yet?" Henderson demanded of the hat, good-natured proprietor. "No sir, none as yet, sir."

He placed two triple gins before them and, at the same time, handed them the final clue.

"What is it?" Barbara asked. Henderson was looking at it in amazement.

"A crossword puzzle—imagine having to work out a crossword puzzle at this hour of the morning!"

He went on grumbling to himself as he bent over it, and Barbara, too tired to sit still, wandered around the little room, amazed at the collection of stuffed birds and foxes and shell gaskets that were carefully preserved behind glass-paned cases.

Presently he threw his pencil down with a satisfied sigh.

"It's done—like to have a look at it?"

And he showed her the puzzle and the following solution he had worked out.

"You see, knowing the country around here helped me a lot," he confessed. "Trow Abbey is a famous old ruin in these parts and I happen to know the tombstone of Thora Davy. I take it that the treasure's hidden there. . . Now for our drinks—we've earned 'em!"

Barbara eyed her distrustfully. "Hendy—I don't think I'd better."

"What rot. A good stiff drink will do you good."

She shrugged and picked up the glass, studying it absent-mindedly. What did it matter anyhow?

A sense of depression had settled over her and she was furious with herself that this should be so. Hadn't she determined to be gay that night and forget—everything?

The trouble, of course, was Ray. She had begun thinking of him again, doubting, worrying. . . If only he had written her, telephoned her. . . made her understand his absence. She felt she could have forgiven him then. She pulled herself up sharply. If Ray cared as little as he appeared to, why should she mope around for him?

Suddenly, with an air of resolution, she emptied the glass with a gulp.

"Bravo," murmured Henderson. She grinned at him foolishly, conscious of a giddy feeling creeping over her.

health for about a year, but had been ill only a short time, having been paralyzed less than a week ago.

Mr. Pearson was the son of the late George Pearson, of Smithsburg, who was himself well known in educational circles. He taught school at Weverton, Hancock and Smithsburg before going to Franklin and Marshall college, from which he was graduated in 1878. After his graduation there he returned to Washington county and taught at Sharpburg and Smithsburg before becoming principal of the Hagerstown male high school, about 1885.

FIVE DAMAGE SUITS IN FREDERICK COURT

Fredrick—Five damage suits, jointly brought against the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, were moved here during the past week from the circuit court of Washington county, by order of Judge Frank G. Wagoner. The claims are made as the result of an accident at the Keedysville grade crossing on October 19, 1928, in which a truck was demolished and its five occupants injured. The suits range in amount from $3,000 to $10,000. J. Cleveland Griggs, Hagerstown, is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Although the accident took place ing up into her brain. She saw a stuffed bird in the corner wobbling perilously on its pedestal as though it contemplated taking flight. Her own legs, seemed reluctant to obey the dictation of her mind.

"Let's get out into the air," she articulated with difficulty, and Henderson smiled to himself as, with his arm through hers, he led her outside.

The abbey was not far from the Inn and as they came within sight of it, yellowed as it was by a floating pallor of a moon, it made an eerie and inspiring picture.

Barbara, her enthusiasm revived, scrambled eagerly out of the car, and together she and Henderson picked their way between the crumbling boulders that lay on the outskirts of the ruin.

"This was the monks' old dining hall," he told her as they stood within an enclosure, the four walls of which still remained standing. She nodded without speaking, momentarily carried away by the romance of a past that seemed very near at that moment. With her veneration for everything old she seemed under a spell, and Henderson remained silent, not wishing to break it.

Moonlight and an old ruin can create romance even if the man you are with is not the right one. Barbara was only human, and she was obsessed in that very early morning by a "nobody loves me" feeling that is eminently dangerous when there is a not unattractive man in the offing. She shivered, suddenly cold in the absurdly thin cloak she wore.

Henderson took that little shiver for an invitation—anyhow, she found his arms strangely comforting; they made her feel a little less lonely, a little less neglected. She relaxed against him and was only vaguely conscious that he was talking softly, his lips pressed close to her ear.

"Barbara, dear, dear girl, I can't let you go back home without telling you all the splendid, wonderful things you've come to mean to me. I love you, Barbara, I've loved you right from the first moment I saw you on the boat."

She knew that she should have stopped him before this, that she had been wrong in not doing so. But the pride in her, hurt by Ray's absence, rejoiced in what he was saying.

What did it matter anyhow—did any man honestly mean what he said to a girl when the mystery of a June night put disturbing thoughts into his head? She doubted it. Nevertheless she said, "Please, Hendy—remain the dear friend you've always been—don't spoil it all now."

"But Barbara, I can't be just a friend much longer—I can't believe you're happy as things are. I've watched you, my dear, and you have been worried and miserable—won't you confess it to me?"

His arms were very close around her. Her voice sounded very small. "Yes, I have been, Hendy."

A triumphant light kindled his eyes, but his tones were still purposely tender. "I've known it, and Barbara dear, I've been terribly sorry for you, only I knew that you'd hate for me to say it. . . It makes me mad to think of you thrown away on a brute who doesn't appreciate you."

"Don't say that, Hendy, please. . . her voice shook. "What makes you think Ray doesn't appreciate me?"

"If he cared—as I care, Barbara—do you imagine he'd have left you these last few days even if he wasn't enjoying himself on my house party?"

"I'm sure it wasn't that, Hendy," she said quickly.

"Dear of you, Barbara, but I know better. He made it perfectly obvious, the way he left. My opinion is he was bored stiff and went up to town to have a little fun on his own. . . He intimated as much to Major Perkins. The major told me. . ."

"Then whatever Major Perkins told you was unquestionably a lie." They both started and remained stiff.

It was Ray's voice that had shattered the eerie quiet of the abbey ruins.

(Copyright, Dial Press)

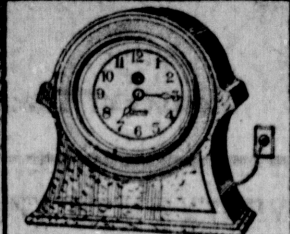

Barbara and Ray have a stormy scene with a happy ending in tomorrow's installment.

in Washington county, being on the road from Sharpburg to Boonsboro, the suit was moved to the Frederick county court when the railroad company petitioned through its attorney, William P. Lane, Jr., alleging that it could not have a fair or impartial trial in the Washington county court.

STRAND PICTURE REST OF WEEK

"Noah's Ark" screen attraction at the Strand theatre, starring Dolores Costello, will be continued the rest of the week, according to Harry Troxell, manager.

Miss Costello plays the part of a dancing girl who finds herself in the midst of the world war, bereft of her American lover. Sentenced to be shot as a spy by the machinations of a man she has repulsed—she is saved by a bursting shell which hurls her and the lover, who has tried to save her, into the cellar of a ruined French chateau—where, as the chaplain compares the modern flood of blood with the ancient flood—all are waited back fifty centuries and she plays the part of a persecuted maiden in the days of Noah.

JACK'S QUIET FRIEND

By Mary Graham Bonner

"I've decided not to take that trip after all tonight," Jack Frost told John and Peggy and the Little Black Clock.

"Why not?" asked John.

"I've just received word that a friend is coming to see me. He comes to see me once in awhile and you know he always changes my plans."

"Do you mind that?" Peggy asked.

"Oh no, because I can go on my trip another time. He doesn't make long visits and I enjoy him when he comes. I always have a chance to do plenty of traveling before the season is over."

"He makes me feel as though a didn't want to do any traveling when he is around."

"He has such a quiet way with him. No! I shouldn't say that he has a quiet way with him. He is as wild as can be. But he makes me feel quiet."

"Are you going to tell us his name?" the Little Black Clock asked.

"To be sure I'll tell you his name. My friend is called the Wind."

"But he's not quiet," John cried. "No. He's not quiet. I said he was wild."

"But you said he had a quiet way with him," John said.

"No, I didn't say he had a quiet way with him."

"That's true, you didn't. But you said he made you feel so quiet."

"He does. That's perfectly true. Wouldn't you like to meet him?"

"Why yes. I've never exactly

"Why yes. I've never exactly

Charged with Laziness—

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized because of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability.

So many of us are only half ourselves, only fifty per cent efficient, because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity! That persistent tired feeling—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

Begins Where Milk of Magnesia Leaves Off

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany. As an acid corrective it begins where milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda leave off.

This new, improved magnesia comes in the form of small white tablets called Magnesia Oxids which do not have to be swallowed whole.

Magnesia Oxids, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active, oxygen, as any doctor will tell you, when generated within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks the putrefaction and fermentation in the gastro-intestinal canal. It exercises a stimulating effect upon the activities of the intestinal walls and aids the movement of the bowels.

All three effects are necessary to the true relief of acidity and Magnesia Oxids supply them in a perfectly natural manner.

Five-Day Acid Test

See for yourself how much acid has to do with your run-down condition and that persistent feeling of tiredness. Make this 5-day acid test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxids from People's Drug Store or any other druggist on our money-back guarantee. Take two after each meal for five days. Note the pick-up in your pep and vigor. Mark the new peace of your stomach and nerves. If five days' test doesn't show you a decided improvement in your health, return the balance of the Oxids to your druggist and he will refund your money.

Sidelights of New York

By Richard Massock

New York—Manhattan's "near east" is being evacuated.

The Armenians, the Syrians and the Greeks, and the Turks as well, are moving out of Washington street. Their emigration is to make way for Battery Town, proposed rich residential district convenient to the financial section.

For decades the smokers of margarine and the makers of Turkish paste, with their prolific families, have lived in a few concentrated blocks around the island's narrow tip from Wall street. Now that they are being dispersed preliminary to the tearing down of their tenements, some are going to more distant parts of the east side.

Others are moving to Greenwich Village, for most of the Syrians are restaurateurs and dealers in native products—linens, pottery and other handiwork. And the Village, of course, is noted for food and gift shops.

Meanwhile the migration is not without incidents demonstrating the swarthy merchants' commercial instincts. A party of Villagers went down to Washington street one evening to dine at Hassan's, long their favorite place. They found it vacant. Upon inquiry at a nearby restaurant, they were told the proprietor had gone to Boston.

A few days later they were surprised to find Hassan serving his stuffed grape leaves in a new restaurant around the corner from their apartment.

It developed that several of his old customers had come upon him in the new location and had been just as surprised. Some had been told by his former competitors that he had moved to Connecticut, others that he had moved to Passaic. Understanding his countrymen, he merely smiled.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rice, of Arden street, are spending several days in Reading where they are attending the Odd Fellows convention. Others from Gettysburg, who attended the convention were, Miss Mary Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Schwartz, William Henry and Edgar Moser.

Mr. and Mrs. Christ Edwards, of Long Branch, are spending several days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Extra Rice, of Bendersville. Mr. Edwards is a brother of Mrs. Rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright had as guests Sunday at their home in Biglerville Mr. and Mrs. William Knouss and daughter, Miss Maude, of Baltimore; the Misses Marguerite and Mary Sweger, of Harrisburg, and Avery Fohl, of Polk.

Mrs. Henry Pickering, with her small son and daughter, left today for their home at Woodbourne after a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. J. Peters, of Guernsey. Miss Eleanor Peters, who had been an overnight guest of her parents while attending the wedding of Miss Margaret Bucher and William Graham Wednesday evening, returned to George School today.

The regular October meeting of the Trilogy club was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. S. Adams, of Peach Glen. The topic for the afternoon's program was "Childhood," in connection with which Mrs. A. I. Weidner read one of James Whitcomb Riley's poems: "The Boy Who Cried Wolf." Mrs. W. S. Adams, of Peach Glen, presided. Mrs. M. T. Dill sang "Frisken, Blynden and Nod." Mrs. Howard Lloyd, of Everett, was an additional guest.

The November meeting will be held with the club's president, Mrs. S. G. Bigham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yeager and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maas have returned to their homes in Rochester, New York, after a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. John Meier, of Biglerville. Mrs. Yeager is a sister of Mrs. Meier, and Mr. Maas a nephew.

The Biglerville Parent-Teachers' association will meet Friday evening in the community hall.

The Young Women's group of the Y. W. C. A. at Biglerville will meet in Walter's hall this evening. Miss Helen Carey will be in charge of the devotional program, and Miss Mary Bowersox will be in charge of recreation. Miss Larue Hostetter of Arden street, will give instructions in basket making.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

MISUNDERSTANDING

WHAT a happy world this would be if people would only—just understand! War would be at an end. Nations would grow and thrive as they never have. Homes would be happier. Business would run smoothly. Work would take on new glamour.

There would be a finer strain to all friendship, and love would glow like new polished gold.

A 16-year-old boy recently wrote and told me of his unhappy life because his father seemed unable to understand him. I felt for that boy but could offer no solution, not knowing the son or the father. But I felt sure that misunderstanding was back of it all.

All disputes are misunderstanding. Most of the mistakes we make result from misunderstanding.

General Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation of America, in a recent magazine article, says this: "We must not forget that the nation's confusion of tongues has in itself been one of the most fruitful sources of international division and misunderstanding. People mistrust what they do not understand; let them develop a common medium of communication and still another cause of distrust will fall by the wayside of human progress."

When you talk with an unhappy person, almost the first thing you listen to is that he is misunderstood. In most cases it is probably true. On the other hand, we must strive to understand ourselves as far as possible.

Selfishness is usually behind all misunderstanding, so if we endeavor to be thoughtful of others and seek to get their viewpoint, misunderstanding is apt to wail away in a most mysterious manner.

When confusion arises and the dark clouds appear, what a difference it would make if we would simply resolve within ourselves to try to understand!

COLLEGE GRID FOR HIGH GAME

Contest With Mechanicsburg Saturday Follows Frosh Academy Game.

Faculty Manager Lefever announced this morning that the Gettysburg high-Mechanicsburg high football game on Saturday, would be staged on Memorial Field at Gettysburg college, instead of on the playground field, as previously announced.

This change of gridirons was made in order to accommodate the large crowd that is expected to witness the game. Mechanicsburg expects over 500 rooters to accompany its team.

Local rooters will also welcome the change as it provides a "big gain day" for the fans. At 1:30 Coach "Charlie" Spangler's freshman eleven will play its first game of the season when it meets "Hips" Wolfe's Gettysburg academy aggregation.

Immediately after this struggle the Maroons and Mechanicsburg will put on their battle. An admission of fifty cents will be charged for both games. College students will be admitted to both games on presentation of their pass books.

The high school game is being put through the stiffest kind of workout in preparation for the season. The Maroon mentors are expecting the boys to show a reversal of form over last Saturday and is leaving nothing undone to have them primed for the game.

Injured players are fast rounding into shape so that the Bullets will have their full strength for the invaders. Coach Mercer has been pointing his squad for the Gettysburg game for several weeks and undoubtedly some thrills are in store for fans.

YORKER PATENTS SELF LUBRICATING AUTOMOBILE FAN

York—Clarence E. Jeffers, of the County Club road, Tuesday was awarded a patent for a self-lubricating automobile fan on an application more than two years old. He filed his application with the patent department at Washington, D. C., on April 21, 1927. Fifteen claims for new ideas in the method of lubricating an automobile fan were allowed.

PURCHASE OF VOTES SCORED BY JURIST

Hagerstown—Judge D. H. Rodgers in his charge to the jury at the opening of Berkeley county circuit court at Martinsburg, West Virginia, Tuesday, dwelt comprehensively on the various statutory violations in that county. Especially did he stress violations of the gambling laws, violations of the gambling laws, prohibition laws and vote buying.

He denounced the vote buyer and declared the vote-seller was equally guilty. "The man who makes a commodity of his vote is simply selling the liberty for which his forefathers fought and died," the court said. Referring to the prohibition law, he said that the jurors are required under oath to enforce the law of the state and to indict all those brought before them, the charges being properly substantiated. The court spoke at length on the laws to prevent gambling and denounced the commercial use of slot machines.

York—A bicycle, the property of Eugene Knorr, 166 South Albemarle street, was reported stolen to the police Tuesday afternoon. The bicycle, a Black Beauty, was painted maroon and gold. It bears city license number 766, and the manufacturer's number is 1027. It was stolen from the Hannah Penn school between 4 and 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Hagerstown—George C. Pearson, a prominent educator of Washington county, died at his home at Smithsburg Monday at 12:30 o'clock p. m., aged 78 years.

Mr. Pearson had been in failing health for about a year, but had been ill only a short time, having been paralyzed less than a week ago.

Mr. Pearson was the son of the late George Pearson, of Smithsburg, who was himself well known in educational circles. He taught school at Weverton, Hancock and Smithsburg before going to Franklin and Marshall college, from which he was graduated in 1878. After his graduation there he returned to Washington county and taught at Smithsburg and Smithsburg before becoming principal of the Hagerstown male high school, about 1885.

FIVE DAMAGE SUITS IN FREDERICK COURT

FREDERICK—Five damage suits, jointly brought against the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, were moved here during the past week from the circuit court of Washington county, by order of Judge Frank G. Wagaman. The claims are made as the result of an accident at the Keedysville grade crossing on October 19, 1928, in which a truck was demolished and its five occupants injured. The suits range in amount from $3,000 to $10,000. J. Cleveland Grice, Hagerstown, is attorney for the plaintiffs.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

BY MAYSIE BREID

SYNOPSIS: Barbara, her ankle injured when her horse fell in a water-jump after the fox-hunt, returns to Henderson's home to learn that Ray has fled to London, pleading a manufacturing excuse of urgent business. She finds a short note, explaining only that he will return in a few days. Indignant at Ray's behavior, Barbara determines to hide the hurt and plunges wildly into a role of gaiety and happiness while she secretly longs for Ray's return. A few nights later, she and Henderson are paired for a midnight treasure hunt.

Chapter 16

AN UNEXPECTED VISITOR

THREE o'clock found Barbara and Henderson sitting in the back parlor of the Blue Boar Inn, to which the last clue had led them. Both had the appearance of being somewhat dejected as they sat in the stiff upright chairs of the stuffy parlor.

"Any of the others been here yet?" Henderson demanded of the fat, good-natured proprietor.

"No sir, none as yet, sir." He placed two triple gins before them and, at the same time, handed them the final clue.

"What is it?" Barbara asked. Henderson was looking at it in amazement.

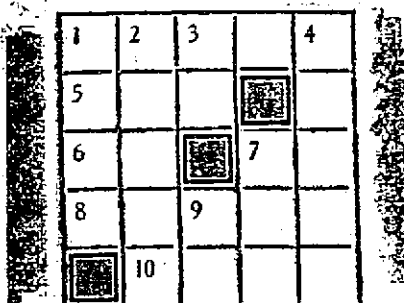

"A crossword puzzle—imagine saying to work out a crossword puzzle at this hour of the morning!"

He went on grumbling to himself as he bent over it, and Barbara, too tired to sit still, wandered around the little room, amazed at the collection of stuffed birds and foxes and shell gaskets that were carefully preserved behind glass-paned cases.

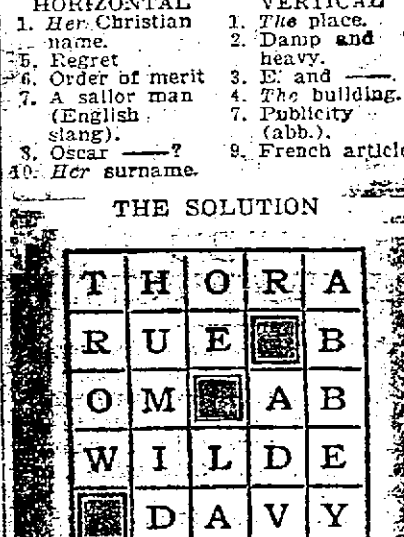

Presently he threw his pencil down with a satisfied sigh.

"It's done—like to have a look at it?"

And he showed her the puzzle and the following solution he had worked out.

THE SOLUTION

"You see, knowing the country around here helped me a lot," he confessed. "Trow Abbey is a famous old ruin in these parts and I happen to know the tombstone of Thora Davy. I take it that the treasure's hidden there. Now for our drinks—we've earned 'em!"

Barbara eyed her distrustfully. "Hendy—I don't think I'd better."

"What rot. A good stiff drink will do you good."

She shrugged and picked up the glass, studying it absent-mindedly. What did it matter anyhow?

A sense of depression had settled over her and she was furious with herself that this should be so. Hadn't she determined to be gay that night and forget—everything? The trouble, of course, was Ray. She had begun thinking of him again, doubting, worrying. If only he had written her, telephoned her. . . . made her understand his absence. She felt she could have forgiven him then. She pulled herself up sharply. If Ray cared as little as he appeared to, why should she mope around for him?

Suddenly, with an air of resolution, she emptied the glass with a gulp.

"Bravo," murmured Henderson. She grinned at him foolishly, conscious of a giddy feeling creep ing into her brain. She saw a stuffed bird in the corner wobbling perilously on its pedestal as though it contemplated taking flight. Her own legs, seemed reluctant to obey the dictation of her mind.

"Let's get out into the air," she articulated with difficulty, and Henderson smiled to himself as, with his arm through hers, he led her outside.

The abbey was not far from the inn and as they came within sight of it, yellowed as it was by a floating balloon of a moon, it made an eerie and inspiring picture.

Barbara, her enthusiasm revived, scrambled eagerly out of the car, and together she and Henderson picked their way between the crumbling boulders that lay on the outskirts of the ruin.

"This was the monks' old dining hall," he told her as they stood within an enclosure, the four walls of which still remained standing.

She nodded without speaking, momentarily carried away by the romance of a past that seemed very near at that moment. With her veneration for everything old she seemed under a spell, and Henderson remained silent, not wishing to break it.

Moonlight and an old ruin create romance even if the man you are with is not the right one. Barbara was only human, and she was obsessed in that very early morning by a "nobody loves me" feeling that is eminently dangerous when there is a not unattractive man in the offing. She shivered, suddenly cold in the absurdly thin cloak she wore.

Henderson took that little shiver for an invitation—anyhow, she found his arms strangely comforting; they made her feel a little less lonely, a little less neglected. She relaxed against him and was only vaguely conscious that he was talking softly, his lips pressed close to her ear. . . .

"Barbara, dear girl, I can't let you go back home without telling you all the splendid, wonderful things you've come to mean to me. I love you, Barbara, I've loved you right from the first moment I saw you on the boat."

She knew that she should have stopped him before this, that she had been wrong in not doing so. But the pride in her, hurt by Ray's absence, rejoiced in what he was saying.

What did it matter anyhow—did any man honestly mean what he said to a girl when the mystery of a June night put disturbing thoughts into his head? She doubted it. Nevertheless she said, "Please, Hendy—remain the dear friend you've always been—don't spoil it all now."

"But Barbara, I can't be just a friend much longer—I can't believe you're happy as things are. I've watched you, my dear, and you have been worried and miserable—won't you confess it to me?"

His arms were very close around her. Her voice sounded very small.

"Yes, I have been, Hendy."

A triumphant light kindled his eyes, but his tones were still purposely tender.

"I've known it and, Barbara dear, I've been terribly sorry for you, only I knew that you'd hate for me to say it. . . . It makes me mad to think of you thrown away on a brute who doesn't appreciate you."

"Don't say that, Hendy, please. . . ." Her voice shook. "What makes you think Ray doesn't appreciate me?"

"If he cared—as I care, Barbara—do you imagine he'd have left you these last few days even if he wasn't enjoying himself on my house party?"

"I'm sure it wasn't that, Hendy," she said quickly.

He smiled wisely into her upturned face.

"Dear of you, Barbara, but I know better. He made it perfectly obvious, the way he left. My opinion is he was bored stiff and went up to town to have a little fun on his own. . . . He flattered as much to Major Perkins. The major told me."

"Then whatever Major Perkins told you was unquestionably a lie."

They both started and remained stiff.

It was Ray's voice that had startled the eerie quiet of the abbey ruins.

(Copyright, Dial Press)

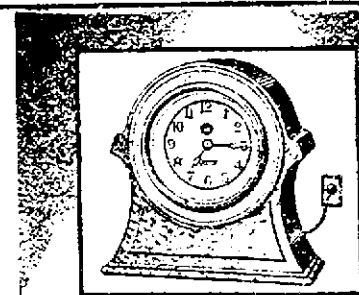

Barbara and Ray have a stormy scene with a happy ending in tomorrow's installment.

In Washington county, being on the road from Sharpsburg to Boonsboro, the suit was moved to the Frederick county court when the railroad company petitioned, through its attorney, William F. Lane, Jr., alleging that it could not have a fair or impartial trial in the Washington county court.

STRAND PICTURE REST OF WEEK

"Noah's Ark" screen attraction at the Strand theatre, starring Dolores Costello, will be continued the rest of the week, according to Harry Traxell, manager.

Miss Costello plays the part of a dancing girl who finds herself in the midst of the world war, bereft of her American lover. Sentenced to be shot as a spy by the machinations of a man she has repulsed—she is saved by a bursting shell which hurls her and the lover, who has tried to save her, into the cellar of a ruined French chateau—where, as the chaplain compares the modern flood of blood with the ancient flood—all are waited back fifty centuries and she plays the part of a persecuted maiden in the days of Noah.

Miss Frances Walker, a six-year-old daughter of G. E. Walker, of Bendersville, planted a pumpkin seed in a crock in the spring and subsequently transplanted it, giving it her personal care and attention throughout. The fruit of her labors was seven large pumpkins, the seven weighing 240 pounds. Miss Frances is justly proud of her first horticultural experiment.

School House Burnt: The new school house in Menasha township, near Arendtsville, was fired by an incendiary on Saturday night, October 14, and burnt. It has been only recently completed, the Board accepting it from the contractors on the 1st inst. On the following Saturday night about 11 o'clock, it was found on fire. The School Board met on Saturday and determined to rebuild at once.

Removal of an Eye: In August, 1878, David Sanders, of Hamilton township, whilst feeding a threshing machine, was struck in the eye by a piece of straw, producing a serious injury of the ball and destroying the sight. Owing to the painful character of the disease, it became necessary to remove the eye, as serious sympathetic disease was coming in the sound one. On Wednesday morning Dr. J. M. Radebaugh, of Gettysburg, assisted by Drs. C. and R. Horner removed the diseased eye. The operation was eminently successful. Mr. S. is out of bed and doing well.

Died: Benner—Oct. 15, in Straban township, after a lingering illness, Christian Benner, aged 75 years.

Mr. Geo. Sell has exchanged his house and several acres of land with Mr. Henry Peters for a mountain lot, on which copper is supposed to exist.

Our village was thrown into a state of excitement Saturday morning when the discovery that burglars had been operating in town. At Mr. Wm. T. Harbaugh's place, they forced an entrance. Whether frightened or not is not known, but thus far nothing is missing. The Mansion House, kept by Mr. Shively was entered in the rear and some edibles taken from the pantry. A dozen and a half bottles of lager beer were removed from the cellar. At the post office $100 in stamps, but no cash money was obtained. An attempt was made to force open the store of Mr. Daniel Sullivan, but being frightened off by a noise they left in haste and a large piece of iron and two chisels were found on the porch. The iron had been taken from Mr. Rasch's blacksmith shop and the chisels from Mr. C. J. Sefton's shop. No clue has as yet been found. The loss of the stamps falls upon Messrs. Neely and Musselman, who are the proprietors of the store in which the post office is kept.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Chippy Chipmunk was very much surprised to learn from his gray squirrel cousin that the Big Red Barn was stored with grain.

"It's just crammed full of wheat and corn," chuckled Scatterbrains, with a knowing wink.

"But it will be stealing to take anything," said Chippy Chipmunk. "We have no right to do that."

What's in the Shady Forest is ours for the gathering, but not what is stored away in barns."

What has been reaped and garnered, And stored for winter use. No one has right to gather. No matter what excuse.

"Pooh!" sneered Scatterbrains. "I'm going over there to meet Mr. Sharpooth Rat. He's going to show me how to get all I want."

"Better look out, he's an old sharper," advised Chippy Chipmunk. But Scatterbrains paid no attention, and started off for the Big Red Barn at once.

No sooner was the foolish squirrel out of sight than along came Little

His Grandpa. Who mocks all hygienic rules?

Who laughs at all his wilful ways And thinks him cute when he displays

His temper to the public gaze? His Grandpa.

And yet who was it once was stern? His Grandpa.

Who made his obedience learn? His Grandpa.

Who was it once pronounced the word. Which now he says is most absurd.

That children should be seen, not heard? His Grandpa.

Jack Rabbit, clipperly clip, lipperty lip, with never a stumble and nary a slip, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. On hearing what naughty Scatterbrains was up to, the little rabbit gave a low whistle. That is, he puckered up his mouth as though he were about to whistle, but he made only a funny little windy noise. "Whew!" is the way it sounded.

"The Farmer's watch dog, Old Sicem, will be on the lookout. Scatterbrains had better take care. Mr. Sharpooth Rat will get him into trouble as sure as Monday follows Sunday. And sunshine follows rain. And little brooks flow to the ocean. And green apples give you a pain," observed the good little bunny. And it turned out just as the little rabbit had forecasted. At first Scatterbrains just thought that Mr. Sharpooth Rat wanted to give him some nice grain and corn for nothing, but when people want to give you something for nothing, it's time to look out.

"Come right in," said the old rat as the little squirrel came into sight. "Come right into the Big Red Barn and smell how good the corn is."

Scatterbrains thought it smelt delicious. "Your teeth are just the right length," went on the old rat. "Mine are a trifle too long to gnaw a hole in the bin, so you get to work while I keep watch."

When the hole was made, the wicked old rat said: "Now creep in and bring out some corn."

But, Oh dear me! Just then the barn door opened and in came the Farmer's Boy. Away scampered the old rat, and as soon as the Farmer's Boy had stopped up the hole, he opened the door to the grain room and let in his fox terrier dog. Scatterbrains was dreadfully scared and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

The Twin Flue is a patented feature found in no other circulating heater. An outstanding achievement in heater construction, it gives truly amazing heating-power together with gratifying economy of fuel.

Come in and let us explain the twin flue principle. It is easy to understand and very interesting. Once you see how it works you'll wonder how anyone could ever be satisfied with anything but a Twin Flue Super-Heater.

Then we want you to see how beautiful this heater is. The picture here give you some idea of the symmetry and gracefulness of the console cabinet, but they cannot show you the wonderful walnut finish which is an exact reproduction, in graining and color, of natural walnut wood.

About New York

By Richard Massock

New York.—For weeks this spring the staff of a New York fashion observer went about town looking at

They observed the women throughout the theatre district and on the roof gardens and found that 20 per cent of what they wore was black, 14 per cent blue, 12 red, 10 white and most of the rest yellow, green or brown.

They stood on Fifth avenue at Forty-second street and again at Fifth and found that one-third of all the women passing those corners wore some tone of sun-burn colors.

On July 17 the scouts at a fashionable Park avenue restaurant counted at luncheon more than 50 hats. Seven were of the new "baby bonnet" type, two in velvet and five in felt. A similar count at the same place on June 12 had shown no baby bonnets.

This August more than 350 enrolled at the smart hotel where a week's lectures are given. They came from big cities and small, Chicago and San Francisco, Wilmington, Del., and Pocatello, Ida.

Amos Parrish, who conceived the profitable idea of putting fashions on a scientific basis, is only 37 years old. Formerly a Cleveland newspaper man, he came to New York as advertising manager of a large department store.

Here he began studying style trends and merchandising methods and in 1921 he set up a separate organization to make surveys of individual buying and selling problems for stores throughout the country.

Charting Fashions
It is Parrish's theory that the public sets the vogue. "Seldom he ascends and as gradually declines." Thus the sun-tan color fad took from 1923 to reach its present peak. Already the trend toward darker shades has started, but it probably will be another four years before the sun-tan tones have entirely disappeared.

Paris (AP)—The Broken Arms, a gang of four youths all under twenty and led by a boy of fifteen, have been captured after a spectacular attempt to revive the traditions of the Paris apaches of twenty years ago. They committed highway robberies and raids on stores in all parts of the city.

Smirna (AP)—Prisoners in the Turkish jail here who have been allowed for many years the diversion of training carrier pigeons, have lost that privilege. It was discovered that the birds brought optimum and hashish into the prison.

About New York

By Richard Massock

New York—For weeks this spring the staff of a New York fashion observer went about town looking at clothes.

They observed the women throughout the theatre district and on the roof gardens and found that 20 per cent of what they wore was black. 14 per cent blue, 12 red, 10 white and most of the rest yellow, green or brown.

They stood on Fifth avenue at Forty-second street and again at Fiftyth and found that one-third of all the women passing those corners wore some tone of sun-burn colors.

On July 17 the scouts at a fashionable Park avenue restaurant counted at luncheon more than 50 hats. Seven were of the new "baby bonnet" type, two in velvet and five in felt. A similar count at the same place on June 12 had shown no baby bonnets.

Forecasting Styles

That is one way in which trends are determined for the fashion clinics.

These clinics, started here last year by Amos Parrish, have grown to such proportions that two were

New Way To Improve Skin

A wonderful discovery is the new French process which gives MELLO-GLO Face Powder its unparalleled smoothness and makes it stay on longer. The purest powder made—its color is tested. conducted this summer. Last August 60 representatives of retail stores paid $200 each to learn what the American woman would wear the next season and how to sell it to her. This August more than 350 enrolled at the smart hotel where a week's lectures are given. They came from big cities and small, Chicago and San Francisco, Wilmington, Del., and Pocatello, Ida.

Amos Parrish, who conceived the profitable idea of putting fashions on a scientific basis, is only 37 years old. Formerly a Cleveland newspaper man, he came to New York as advertising manager of a large department store.

Here he began studying style trends and merchandising methods and in 1921 he set up a separate organization to make surveys of individual buying and selling problems for stores throughout the country.

Charting Fashions
It is Parrish's theory that the public sets the vogue. Seldom, he says, is a style absolutely new. Usually it is definitely related to a previous fashion. It grows out of a definite need and desire, which comes along more slowly and logically than most people think.

Take, for example, the cloche. It became the only kind of feminine headwear because of its suitability to boyish costumes and short skirts. Now that femininity and longer skirts are returning, it is being modified and adapted. But it lasted long enough for one New York store to sell a single model, in different colors, over and over again, year in and year out, to the same women—thousands of them.

Fashion trends are charted in graph form, like weather records. As a basis, the stylists study Paris and American showings, trade paper reports, manufacturers' sales, retail sales and the advertisements of coming modes.

The line usually runs the same for each new style. It gradually ascends and as gradually declines.

Thus the sun-tan color faded from 1925 to reach its present peak. Already the trend toward darker shades has started, but it probably will be another four years before the sun-tan tones have entirely disappeared.

Paris (AP)—The Broken Arms, a gang of four youths all under twenty and led by a boy of fifteen, have been captured after a spectacular attempt to revive the traditions of the Paris apaches of twenty years ago. They committed highway robberies and raids on stores in all parts of the city.

Chippy Chipmunk was very surprised to learn from his gray squirrel cousin that the Big Red Barn was stored with grain. It's just crammed full of wheat and corn," chuckled Scatterbrains, with a knowing wink.

PENN. mother proves her idea is right...

"MY little son was bilious and upset," says Mrs. Mary Sarsfield, 5131 Hoopes St., Philadelphia. "He had no appetite, his breath was bad, his tongue was coated, and he was nearly always tired and sleepy."
"He seemed to have trouble with his stomach and bowels and I had an idea California Fig Syrup would help him. He brightened up marvelously with the first few doses. At the end of a week, he was a different boy. I have used California Fig Syrup with him every time he has had a cold or upset, and I give it a lot of credit for his wonderful condition."
California Fig Syrup never fails to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, feverish or constipated children, quickly and gently. It never gripes or sickens. Children love its flavor. A pure vegetable product with the highest endorsement of doctors. It helps Nature give tone and strength to the stomach and bowels.
All drug stores have the generous bottles. The name "California" marks the genuine.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c. Today at The People's Drug Store.—adv.

Bold Early English Aeronauts Handled Frail Craft Gallantly

London (AP)—In comparison with Britain's new leviathans of the air—each as big as a trans-Atlantic ocean liner—the first lighter-than-air craft launched from English soil to 1783 would seem ludicrously small. It was a little balloon of oiled silk made by an Italian count and was publicly shown as a great curiosity for several days before it was formally "launched" on November 25. Ten feet in diameter and weighing only 11 pounds in all, the balloon nevertheless had thousands of astounded humans watching it until it landed, 150 minutes, (not hours) later near a Sussex village 48 miles from London. Early in the next year a still smaller balloon—five feet in diameter—was launched in Kent and came down in French Flanders, the very first balloon to cross the English Channel. Neither of these carried passengers; but in August 1784, a venturesome Edinburgh editor

"scooped" the rest of Great Britain in an aeronautical sense by ascending from Scottish soil in a balloon he himself had built. His name was J. Tytler, and his historic first non-stop flight through the atmosphere of Scotland measured approximately one-half of a mile. A few days later Vincent Lunardi, another Italian, made the first really convincing British flight, in the popular sense, by going up from the Artillery ground here in a balloon less than 4 feet in circumference but equipped with fan-like oars as an aid to navigation. Unlike the skipper of the Graf Zeppelin, several generations later, Lunardi was not able to take along a gorilla and a piano, but he did the best he could for popular aviation by including a dog and a cat and a pigeon in his cargo. A great crowd witnessed the take-off. Even the Prince of Wales was there. Soon after the balloon left the ground, however, the pigeon escaped and the cat began yawling and one of Lunardi's oars broke off and fell to the ground. He solved the cat question by descending at South Mimms and gallantly assisting the animal to alight. He then rose again and continued his cruise for about 45 minutes, landing finally at Standon.

As a result of this flight Lunardi became a veritable eighteenth-century Lindbergh in sudden popularity.

IN MEMORIAM
In sad but loving remembrance of my dear wife, Margaret Elizabeth Sharetts, who died four years ago today, October 17, 1925. No one knows the sad heartaches. Only those who have lost can tell Of the grief that is borne in silence For the one I loved so well.

What happy hours I once enjoyed; How sweet that memory still; But death has left a loneliness This world can never fill.

Home is not home since my dear wife is not here; My home is so lonely, so dark; so drear; No more will I hear her footsteps fall; She is gone to that home prepared for all.

Off we wander to the graveyard To place flowers with gentle care On the graves of our loved ones Who are resting sweetly there.

Farewell, dear wife, a long farewell. Though you have left me here to weep.

The grief I feel no tongue can tell While sweetly in the grave you sleep.

By Your Husband.

MR. E. ATTLESPPERGER

Another Ailing Man Wins Health With New Prescription

Declares Natex brought prompt relief—pains disappear.

Never a day passes now but what some local person tells the Natex Representative of the wonderful good Natex has done them. Sufferers from stomach disorders, rheumatic pains, sluggish liver ailments, weak kidneys, constipation, poor sleep, shattered nerves, poor appetite and many other symptoms brought on by the vital organs being weakened come forward stating that Natex has put new life into their rundown systems and filled their veins with healthy red blood. Just recently Mr. E. Attlesperger, 601 Frederick St., Hanover, Pa., an employee of the Winebrenner Canning Factory made the following statement. He says: "During the past month Natex has made a wonderful change in my health and I am so pleased with the benefits it brought me that I am recommending it to my friends and am glad to give this statement for publication in the newspapers. "I used to be troubled with such a severe soreness and pain in my abdomen that I had to sit down at times. Constipation also bothered me a great deal and I suffered with pains in my back and limbs. My appetite had almost disappeared, headaches, a coated tongue and a bad taste in my mouth worried me and I grew very nervous and run-down. "Although the first two bottles of Natex didn't seem to help me very much I continued on the treatment and now the severe pain in my abdomen has practically disappeared as have the aches in my back and limbs. My bowels are as regular as the clock, my nerves are better and my appetite has improved 100 per cent. I feel very grateful to Natex for what it has done for me and never lose an opportunity to recommend it to others. "The Natex Representative at Murphy's Cut Rate Store is daily explaining the merits of Natex to rundown sufferers. See him today. Samples are free. Natex is also sold by Read's in Westminster and Murphy's in Hanover.

Dublin (AP).—The Cork Harbor board not only granted the petition of the Ford company to build increased warfare there but also proposed to bear a portion of the cost of a port improvement. The factory, which now employs 5,000 men, offered to spend $150,000 for the new docks.

Simferopol, Russia (AP).—The newspaper "Red Crimea" published a statement that leaders of the Mennonites saying that the sect had abandoned its conscientious objections to army service. Many Mennonites are joining the Red army.

Paris (AP).—Oysters are plentiful but dearer in France this season. The cheapest kinds cost $1.00 a thousand more than last year. Dealers blame increased wages and higher cost of hampers and string which, they say, over-balance lessened freight rates.

Co-eds have invaded every male stronghold at the University of Missouri except the study of medicine.
